GEN. CARRANZA.

Takes Up Complaint of Ruiz,
a Spanish Subject.

Rebel Chief Makes It Known
He Won't Answer.

Washington Diplomacy Is a
Joke in Sonora.

(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.)

NOGALES (Son., Mex.) March 1.—The State Department at Washington took up today with Gen. Carranza the difficulty of a Spanish subject, named Ruiz, in territory controlled by the Constitutionalists. While the Constitutional commander-in-chief has not answered the communication, it was understood that his reply would be similar to that made about the case of W. E. Benton, a British subject, in which the Washington government was refused information on the grounds that the representation should have been made by English officials.

Gen. Carranza was to have left tomorrow on his trip to Chihuahua by way of Cananea, but it was announced that he would not depart for several days. It was explained that the recent dealings with the Washington government over the complaints of foreigners in Mexico had created a condition which the insurgent chief did not wish to leave unsettled before his overland march into the eastern border State.

The message from Secretary Bryan regarding the Spaniard, Ruiz, had been sent before the receipt at Washington of Gen. Carranza's note in the Benton case.

Ruiz represented the owners of a large quantity of tobacco which had been confiscated by the insurgent officials of Tepic Territory, according to the information received at Washington.

It was made known that Gen. Carranza's stand in the Ruiz case would be but a repetition of that in the Benton affair. Since Spain had recognized the Huerta central government, its position in dealing directly with the Constitutionalists officials would become as difficult as that of England.

It was asserted by officials here that complaints regarding the treatment of any foreigners must come through the diplomatic agents of their governments. The opinion was expressed semi-officially that the assurances of Gen. Carranza that he would investigate the case of Gustav Hauch, an American, who had disappeared at Juarez, and his expression of regret at the incident, would be sufficient assurance to the Washington government of the friendliness of the Mexican insurgents.

There seemed to be some diversity of opinion as to whether the Benton incident would complicate the relation of Latin-Americans to the Monroe Doctrine of the United States. Much eagerness was demonstrated by those surrounding Carranza for news from Washington regarding the matter in which the recent notes of Gen. Carranza had been received.

VERGARA'S WIFE MORE HOPEFUL.

(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.)

LAREDO (Tex.) March 1.—Conflicting reports concerning the disappearance of Clemente Vergara, the Texas ranchman, with the possibility that he still is alive, apparently aroused hope in only one person in the neighborhood of his home today. This person was his wife.

"I do hope it is," exclaimed Mrs. Vergara, when she heard that Gen. Guajardo, Federal commander at Piedras Negras, Mex., had said he received an official report that Vergara escaped his Federal guards and had joined the Constitutionalists.

S. J. Hill, Vergara's brother-in-law, and others connected with the investigation of the case, still hold to the belief that Vergara was executed from Hidalgo jail.

In order to determine the question, friends of the missing man tonight were planning a demand on the government to obtain Vergara's body if it lies in the newly-made grave in Hidalgo cemetery noticed by Mexicans soon after a swinging body was cast down from the place of its execution near the city.

Consul Garrett has received no further instructions from the State Department on the subject of recovering the body. He is continuing his investigation.

ments could be made with Gen. Carranza. Change his attitude, is the confident assertion of American Consul Simpkins at Nogales, who is in touch with Gen. Carranza, was not divulged, but representatives of Carranza, who understand the American viewpoint, were busy telegraphing the Constitutional commander tonight, urging a change of attitude.

Carranza's friends here believe he does not understand exactly the position of the United States with reference to all foreigners in Mexico and are seeking to impress upon him that when dealing with the United States he is, in effect, treating with the agent of Great Britain, as England is expected to have practically entrusted to the Washington government the task of looking after its subjects in Northern Mexico, particularly at points where the American and British consular representatives are at Juarez.

That Carranza will realize this and change his attitude, is the confident expression of his friends here. Washington officials said they did not interpret Carranza's notes as unfriendly. The Carranza reaction was suggested by the United States addressing its first communications about the Benton killing to American Consuls in touch with Gen. Villa, was generally accepted as the explanation of his declaration to submit information to Washington about Benton's death.

The principle, which the American government is following in dealing with Gen. Villa, has been one of practical expediency. Its course has been to make representations quickly through American Consuls to the authorities, civil or military, who happened to be in de facto control of the region where the danger lay.

In some quarters Carranza's suggestion that he should be first addressed was regarded as a bid for formal recognition. The American government, however, it was stated on the highest authority, holds that recognition could be extended only through formal announcement and expressed intention rather than through any casual relationship.

In dealing with Gen. Carranza it is felt here the United States is merely consulting the man whom Gen. Villa says he acknowledges as chief. In view of many officials here, Carranza desired by his notes to impress upon the world the cohesion of the Constitutional movement. His assertion of authority over Villa, which in many quarters has been doubted, is one of the phases of the situation which his supporters of the United States here were expected to clarify.

On the assumption that Carranza is the chief of the movement, it was stated here that if the American government, on behalf of Great Britain, seeks reparation for the Benton killing, representations will be made directly to him. Failure or inability of Carranza to comply would be regarded as having an important bearing on the relation of the United States government to the future of the Constitutional movement.

Officials here admit being considerably perturbed over Mexican affairs. They will wait, however, for Villa and Carranza to give to the world the facts on the Benton episode before declaring the next step.

Secretary Bryan stated positively today that the American government had reached no final conclusion on the circumstances surrounding Benton's execution, although it already had much evidence.

ENGLAND ADVERSE TO RECOGNITION.

(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.)

NEW ORLEANS, March 1.—Great Britain never will recognize the Constitutional party of Mexico, even to the extent of requesting that Carranza investigate the death of William S. Benton, according to Sir Lionel Carden, British Minister to Mexico, who was here today on his way to Washington and England.

"Great Britain has recognized the Huerta government as the only legitimate authority in Mexico," he said, "and why should my government request Carranza for a report on the killing of Benton?" Sir Lionel asked.

Sir Lionel had refused to discuss Mexican affairs until shown dispatches reporting that Gen. Carranza, the Mexican Constitutional chief, had refused to report to Secretary Bryan on the Benton incident and that he would give such information only at the request of Great Britain.

Sir Lionel declined to discuss the matter further, but he said he would be back in Mexico City soon and would resume his duties as Great Britain's Minister in that country. The Minister arrived today from Galveston.

CLEWS FOR INTERVENTION BY CONCERT OF POWERS.

(BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.)

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, March 1.—Henry Clews, the noted banker, said today that for some time he had been in favor of joint intervention in Mexico by all of the powers acting in concert.

"The proper way to settle the situation in Mexico is with as little loss of life as possible and with as little cost as possible and these two ends can be best subserved by joint intervention."

"Some time ago I proposed joint intervention as the only way in which the affairs of Mexico could be profitably put back on a basis of law and order. That, in my opinion, is the proper way of dealing with all such matters. It was done in the case of the Boxer rebellion in China and the success of that accomplishment stamps it as the method that ought to be followed in the present case."

"A combination of world powers intervening jointly in Mexico would have a moral effect on the Mexican people, would have a moral effect on the world, and would be well nigh irresistible. The moral effect on the Mexican people would be such as to awaken them to the necessity of establishing a government more in keeping with the ideas of the twentieth century."

"Personally I am opposed to intervention by the United States acting alone. We have nothing to gain and much to lose by such a course, and there must be some inducement to intervention on the part of the United States, but we have no such inducement."

FIND SHIPPING COMBINE CANNOT BE DISSOLVED.

(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.)

WASHINGTON, March 1.—Foreign and domestic shipping of the United States is so combined by agreements, pools and conference arrangements that an attempt to dissolve the combinations would cripple trade.

This is the conclusion reached by the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee in the final report of the so-called shipping trust investigation made public today. The committee, after two years' inquiry, recommends that both foreign and domestic shipping combinations be placed under control of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and that if necessary, the commission be enlarged to care for the additional work.

The final recommendations of the committee are embodied in the fourteenth volume of its report, just compiled, sets forth that shipping lines in practically every trade route from or to the United States ports are operated by agreement or conference to restrain competition. The report sets forth that the world's shipping is so combined by agreements, pools and conference arrangements that an attempt to dissolve the combinations would cripple trade.

The report details that $60 foreign and domestic navigation companies and railroads lines.

In a statement summarizing the committee's findings and recommendations, Chairman Alexander said:

"Relative to the foreign trade, the report shows that it is the almost universal practice for steamship lines, both on the inbound and outbound voyage, to operate under agreements and conference arrangements, which have for their purpose the control of competition between the conference lines or between them and non-conference lines. Eighty agreements or understandings, involving nearly all the regular lines operating on nearly every American foreign trade route, are in effect, dealing respectively with the traffic to and from Europe, Africa, Australia, Asia, South America, Mexico, Central America and the West Indies. In some instances, where several lines served the same trade and denied the existence of cooperative arrangements, it appears that one line was sufficiently powerful to dominate the other lines, and without effecting any definite agreement, obtain the desired conditions in rates. The agreements, however, which the lines seek to control competition, and regulation of rates, and to control traffic, pooling of earnings, or the elimination of non-conference lines."

"With reference to the domestic trade the fact that competition in rates between steamship lines has

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, March 1.—Women's colleges are fostering race suicide and ought to be abolished before they contribute further to the degeneracy of the race, according to Prof. Rowell Johnson of the University of Wisconsin.

United women's colleges give way to co-educational institutions, however, the influence of the former might be mitigated, the educator suggests, by the substitution of male for female instructors.

The views of Prof. Johnson are set forth in an article, entitled "Marriage Selection," published today in the Journal of Heredity, organ of the American Genetic Association, which David Fairchild of the Federal Bureau of Plant Industry is president.

A statement issued by the association says:

who appointed Davidson and Manly to assist in the examination of Benton's body, gave out no information further than that the medical men had been notified to be at the train at 9 o'clock and that later they reported to him that they were not going.

"Refugees who are deeply interested in the situation were at a loss to account for the new turn in affairs. Several refugees said they thought Carranza's attitude to use the Benton negotiations as a lever to obtain recognition of the rebel government and the dispatches from Washington, indicating that the State Department already is satisfied that it has the correct version of the Benton killing," had something to do with the change in plans.

GREAT NORTHERN MAN HUNT
NARROWS DOWN.

Spurred by Promised Reward of $20,000, Detectives Search for "Kid" Beecher and Jimmy Mahoney, Yegmen, Thought to Be Between Butte and Los Angeles.

(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.)

TACOMA (Wash.) March 1.—"Kid" Beecher and Jimmy Mahoney, yegmen, who have served in several prisons, are being sought today at Butte, Salt Lake City and elsewhere as two of the three bandits who held up the Great Northern train at Samish, February 20, killing three passengers. Al Roy, chief Great Northern detective, and Captain of Detectives Tennant of Seattle, believe they have proof that Beecher and Mahoney are the men who entered the passenger coach and did the shooting. Overcoats left by the bandits in the smoking car are said to have been seen by Mahoney.

The movements of both men have been traced since the robbery. It is believed they went to Seattle, stayed one day and left for Butte Monday night over the Northern Pacific. Both were seen at Butte. It is believed that the $20,000 offered by the Great Northern for the capture of the bandits is being used by them to travel to Los Angeles or a point between.

Four years ago Mahoney was sentenced to the Utah penitentiary with "Canada Whitey," "Los Angeles Slim" and another yegman for burglary. Los Angeles, where he was later killed by a policeman at Stockton, Cal. Mahoney was arrested at Portland three weeks ago. "Boston Jimmy" was released to Seattle. "Kid" Beecher of Pittsburgh and Chicago has served time in Chicago and Ohio prisons. He went to Seattle last night after procuring a diamond ring valued at $165 from Isaac Aronson, jeweler at Broadway and Washington, and a bond broker, with offices at 1214 Broadway, who was arrested for $32 at the Hotel Benson.

Wilson came to Portland a week ago and engaged offices, in which he had intended opening a branch of Wilson & Co.

"A storm of marked intensity, central Sunday morning off Hatteras," said the bulletin, "will move northward and be attended by west and northwest gales and decidedly colder weather Monday in the Middle Atlantic and New England States and snow in the lower lake region and the St. Lawrence Valley."

"Frosts and freezing temperatures will occur in connection with this cold wave as far south as the east Gulf and South Atlantic States, except the southern portion of the Florida Peninsula. This cold wave, however, will be of short duration and a general reaction to higher temperatures will set in over the Middle West Monday and the eastern and southeastern States Tuesday."

"Generally fair weather will prevail during the next several days in practically all parts of the country, except the North Pacific States, where rains will be frequent, during the coming week."

"The next storm of importance to cross the country will appear on the North Pacific Coast Wednesday, cross the great central valleys about Friday and the eastern States about the end of the week. This disturbance will cause general rains on the Pacific slope, and rains in southern and central States and snow in northern States east of the Rocky Mountains."

Premier Asks

Wants British Columbia
Help Canadian Northern
Extra Five Million Dollars
Needed for Railroads

Entire McBride Program
Expected to Pass

(BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.)

TACOMA (Wash.) March 1.—Richard McBride, Premier, British Columbia Parliament, today asked for an extra $5,000,000 for the construction of a 500-mile railway across British Columbia, supplementary to the original estimate of $15,000,000 per mile, and necessary, the Premier explained, to cause the company to be planned, for steel bridges and betterments.

For this extra $5,000,000 the British Columbia government would contribute $1,000,000 of Canadian common stock, and a cash contribution of $100,000, additional to the $1,000,000 already deposited.

Victoria dispatches say Premier McBride's entire railway extension program will be enacted this week by the legislature. It includes a system of bond interest of Pacific Great Eastern (Trunk) from Ft. George north to Peace River, the same to be completed within two years. There are guarantees for Canadian Northern on Vancouver Island from Kamloops into the Gulf of Fraser district.

Premier McBride announced today that the $5,000,000 additional to the $15,000,000 total railway guarantee, as compared with $4,000,000 guaranteed by Alberta, would be taken from the $1,000,000 that British Columbia has contributed to the project.

McBride's plan is to increase the Grange Trunk Pacific, the Canadian Northern, and the Canadian Pacific, Canadian Northern group, by three provinces aggregating $10,000,000.

Fresh Air and Health

Mental work calls an unusual supply of blood to the brain; the process of digestion calls the blood to the stomach. Brain work immediately after a hearty meal often causes indigestion because the brain has first call on a supply of blood that should be helping the stomach.

Wherever, in the economy of the body, work is to be done there is a demand for bright, red blood. Thin blood or blood dark with impurities will not do because it is the oxygen carried by the blood that does the work and oxygen-bearing blood is bright and red. This life-sustaining oxygen is taken up by the blood from the air which it meets in the lungs. Hence the great need of fresh air every hour of the day and night. But fresh air is useless if the blood cannot take up the oxygen which it gives.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills enable the blood to take up more oxygen because they increase the part of the blood that carries the oxygen. This corrects the lassitude, palpitation of the heart, shaky nerves and the pallor that are the results of thin, impure blood.

You must have pure, rich blood to enjoy complete health. A booklet "Building Up the Blood" will be sent free on request by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. All druggists sell Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

THE consideration of a third begun. The Army Appropriation Bill, carrying $24,114,000 for the support of the military establishment during the next fiscal year, went through without material amendment.

The agricultural bill, which appropriates $15,847,000 for the conduct of the Agricultural Department, was then taken up and twelve hours of general debate was agreed upon. To hasten consideration the House agreed to meet at 11 o'clock during the general debate.

The army bill authorizes the War Department to distribute among rifle clubs and military schools all the rifles and 120 rounds of ammunition for each gun.

-of this Bank's Service

While this bank serves the public in every financial capacity it offers certain forms of service of very wide appeal. We desire to call your attention to our SAFE DEPOSIT and TRUST DEPARTMENTS and the unusual advantages offered in our SPECIAL SAVINGS ACCOUNT. Visit the bank and talk with one of our officers regarding these important features of our service.

The Safe Deposit Department

Our Safe Deposit Department is without doubt one of the most perfectly appointed on the Pacific Coast. The Safe Deposit Vault has a capacity of 16,000 boxes and is of the finest and most modern construction. Walls of Harvelite Armour-plate Bessemer steel, similar to that used on our highest type battleships, afford a measure of protection that cannot be excelled.

The Safe Deposit boxes are of various sizes, yearly rentals ranging from $2.50 upward. In the main, the vault is also safe to accommodate boxes and records of corporations, associations, etc. and is especially devoted to the storage of articles of value.

The 3% Special Savings Account

This splendid form of investment—the SPECIAL SAVING S.A.C.—CUMULATIVE—yields 3 per cent interest annually when the balance does not fall below $100. The interest is credited monthly. The SPECIAL SAVINGS ACCOUNT provides a satisfactory means of accumulating money, plus convertibility. For further particulars regarding this account, call at the New Accounts Window to the right as you enter the bank from Spring Street.

The Trust Department

The Los Angeles Trust & Savings Bank is an ideal executor, guardian, trustee and adviser. It charges no more for its services than does an individual. It will draw up wills free of charge and its officers are always accessible for consultations.

This Trust Department is a fiduciary who will not get sick, go out of town, take a vacation or die—but who will repair the business of a trust as his first and most important concern—who is absolutely honest—who is an expert in his work.

The splendid growth of the Trust Department has necessitated its removal to larger and more convenient quarters on the second floor.

Far East Is Cut Off.

(Continued from First Page.) He was found frozen stiff this morning. He had been reared out of doors and was accustomed to sleeping in the open all his life.

Cities in Northern Indiana report a blizzard all over that district and transportation badly crippled. The gale is blowing forty miles an hour, whipping the storm rapidly to the east.

Advices from the East tonight said the blizzard and storm which hit New York, New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania especially hard, came out of Hatteras and swept northeast. The blizzard struck New York City after midnight and filled the streets with snow, stopping traffic.

The gale blew at forty miles an hour and the barometer warned of worse conditions to follow. The government issued a special warning to all boats to remain in port. The blizzard struck the Pacific Coast trade proper.

Mr. Palmer asserted that the storm of the year is expected on the coast between Maine and the Gulf. The storm coming from Hatteras, containing much matter of special interest to the Pacific Coast trade proper, judging from their answers to the committee's schedule of questions, are not without service.

Spring Styles for Men

Clean-cut simplicity that fits dapper neat is the inclination of Spring's styles for men.

Smart neatness rather than loungy outenish effects. There are no marked, radical, changes. Clothes fabrics are a bit quieter in colorings.

Soft hats will have big, bungle, diamond-creased crowns and rather narrow, drooped-down brims, naturally blocked so, with bows slightly at the left of the back. Every man who can afford it will have several soft hat changes. Blues and greens lead.

When hot weather comes the Panama straw will rule popularity over the Sennett and Split-straw, and will be shown in much the same shapes as the soft hats of the early season. A soft felt hat should be worn after sun-down this summer.

Suits are snug, plain, extremely neat rather than careless-careless. Vests six-button. Trousers straight. Coats two and three button with roll or flat lapels, the lapels in many instances wider, and coat-collars a bit wider, than last season. Many patch pockets will be worn.

Collars are of medium height, natty neat, sharp cornered effects for cravats to knot very similar to last season's, including the wide knit scarves.

Shirtings have changed but little. More silks will be worn. While the "tango" or soft pleated bosom dress shirt is permissible the really smartly proper dress shirt for intensely formal affairs is the white stiff bosom, either perfectly plain or pique self figured or striped.

More tan kid gloves will be seen, though the chamois and reindeer will still be preferred by many.

One of the season's novelties is a combination suit of shirt and drawers, created by ARROW. The shirt a regular shirt; the drawers knee-length, rocker seat, and buttoning down the outside of the right leg.

You will find the new style creations, those which will be nationally recognized and worn, shown in:

Hart Schaffner & Marx $18 to $40 clothes. $15 CLOTHCRAFT pure wool clothes. John B. Stetson $4 to $20 and "Hill-top" hats.

$1 Monarch, $1.50 to $10 ARROW and Manhattan shirts. Perrin's and Dent's $1.50 to $3.50 gloves. Delpark's De Luxe wash productions.

Onyx, Everwear, McCallum and "888" hosiery.

MACNAUGHTON FIRST WITNESS

Calumet's General Manager to Testify Today.

This Is Operators' Week in Strike Inquiry.

Congressmen's Next Move Will Be Chicago.

(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE)
HOUGHTON (Mich.) March 1.—James MacNaughton, general manager of the Calumet and Hecla Mining Company, will be the first witness for the mine operators tomorrow before the Congressional investigating committee inquiring into the copper miners' strike, it was announced tonight by Allen F. Rees of counsel for the companies.

Chairman Taylor and other members of the committee expressed themselves today as hopeful of concluding the hearings here by the end of the present week. Rees thought the operators could present their case within six days.

The committee will move next to Chicago, where the Michigan National Guard will be given an opportunity to answer the charges against its members. On the same occasion the strikers will be permitted to offer testimony to support their charges that the immigration laws have been violated.

Charles H. Moyer, president of the Western Federation of Miners, is expected to be present at the Chicago hearing.

MAY SEE "MOTHER" JONES.
It is believed the Colorado Congressional investigating committee will interview the Prisoner.

TRINIDAD (Colo.) March 1.—It was believed tonight that plans had been made by the Congressional Strike Investigation Committee to take the testimony of "Mother" Mary Jones tomorrow. Members of the committee refused to confirm the report, while other persons interested in the investigation admitted knowledge of a plan regarding the testimony of "Mother" Jones, but refused to divulge its details.

It was stated that the committee had asked attorneys and others to whom the plan was revealed to keep it secret.

The report that "Mother" Jones was to be interviewed was given color by the fact that the committee tonight announced that the transfer of the investigation to Walsenburg, originally planned for Monday, had been postponed until Tuesday morning. Some members of the committee talked of paying a visit to one or more of the nearby coal mines tomorrow, but there was no announced intention of making an official inspection of the collieries.

"Mother" Jones is confined in San Rafael Hospital as a military prisoner. If the committee takes her testimony tomorrow it may do so at the hospital, or it may have the aged strike leader taken secretly to some other meeting place.

Representatives Byrnes, Evans and Sutherland today visited Hattori N. M. The committee spent a day of what were nearly resembled rest than any it has spent since its arrival in Colorado.

It is believed that the hearings at Walsenburg will be concluded in time to get the committee back to Denver by the last of this week. Tentative plans have been made for taking testimony at some point in the Northern Colorado coal fields and in Routt county. Hearings in this district, if held at all, will be brief.

LOUISIANA'S WILD HOGS.
Their Capture Is Accomplished by Aid of Dogs Trained to Run Towards the Corral.

[Boston Herald:] The wild hogs of Catahoula Parish are declared by natives of that part of Louisiana to be among the most ferocious and aggressive of beasts. The flesh of these meat feeders is much liked by the Catahoula dwellers, and they have perfected a way of capturing the hogs by which the dangers, and particularly the hard work of hunting them have been eliminated.

To accomplish this dogs are trained in a special manner. The only other thing required is a strong pen or corral.

The start of a hunt for a drove of hogs in the thick and tangled Catahoula woods is made by the dog. It is his business to find the drove. After that the hunting is all done by the hogs, for they industriously pursue the dog. The hunter himself does nothing but sit on the corral fence and wait.

Keeping always in mind the direction of the pen, or corral, the dog goes into the woods and flushes a drove of wild hogs. They yell out an aggravating challenge, which the hogs instantly accept. They make a furious dash for the hated enemy, and the hated enemy turns tail and flees, heading straight toward the corral and managing at all times to keep a sufficient distance ahead of the angry drove.

In this way he lures the hogs on until in their mad chase they follow him through the open gate of the corral. Then the hunter jumps the fence, while the master of the hunt lets himself down from his perch on the fence, where he has been patiently waiting the outcome of the chase, and shuts the gate on the entrapped porkers.

—and the worst is yet to come.

MUCH PREFERS MANNISH WAYS.

SHE'D RATHER FIX TIRES THAN WASH DIRTY DISHES.

Strenuous Life of Business Office Delights Her While Hem-Stitching—Disgusts—Sorry She's a Woman and Doing All She Can to Rectify Nature's Mistake.

Manly pursuits and sports appeal to Miss Alma Bittner, business woman from San Francisco, much more than the usual occupations and diversions of her sex. She is sorry she isn't a man and is trying to rectify the mistake made by nature.

Anything that savors of household work is distasteful to Miss Bittner. The duster, the feather duster, the broom, the washing machine, the darning needle and all such appurtenances of the home are unfamiliar to her. She has fought her way in the business world, carries sample trunks and sells dry goods. Her diversions are of the manly brand—aviating, motoring, polo, golf, horseback riding and mountain climbing.

"I don't know how to make biscuits, but I can make 'dough' of the metallic kind," Miss Bittner said yesterday at the Hayward, where she is a guest. "I don't know enough about sewing to hem a napkin and more than that I haven't the patience to thread a needle. Not since I was a very young girl have I held a silly dishrag and I have no callous places in my hand from using the broom."

"Strenuous life in a business office or in a salesroom is much more appealing to me than the hum drum existence in a kitchen or as a parlor ornament. Even when I was very young my father's work interested me much more than my mother's and before I was 20 years old I had begun a business career."

"It always has been a disappointment to me that I didn't belong to the other sex. It seems to me that a man's life is so much more interesting than a woman's—so much more inspiring and profitable."

"Teas, cards and drawing-room gossip are distasteful in the extreme. Give me the thrill of sailing over the city in an aeroplane or clipping along a smooth road at sixty-five miles an hour. I not only know how to drive a motor car, but I understand the mechanism of my machine and have fixed it many a time. It's a man's job to take off a tire and mend a puncture and I have often done it."

While Miss Bittner peculiarities, she possesses a masculine turn of mind there is nothing mannish in her personal appearance. Her features are delicately feminine and her dress true to the traditions of her sex.

A deliberate attempt made at 5:55 p.m. last evening to wreck a two-car electric train filled with passengers on the Los Angeles-Redondo Beach line, was prevented because of a broken trolley wire caused by the devilish attempt to wreck the train. The attempt was made at a curve in the track where the train was crowded with passengers. The attempt was made at a curve in the track where the train was crowded with passengers. SAYS JOHNSON IS WILLING.

Inger Declares Governor Has Promised to Commute Bundy's Sentence.

That Gov. Johnson assured him that favorable action would be taken on a petition to secure commutation of the death sentence of Louis Bundy, murderer of Harold Ziesche, was declared by Inger, the "boy evangelist," in his address to the "mass meeting of protest" against Bundy's hanging, in Symphony Hall. The petition was circulated and signatures were solicited. The petition specifically asks for commutation of sentence to life imprisonment. A collection was taken, also, to support work in Bundy's behalf. Bundy is the callous young thug who lured out, waylaid and beat to death Harold Ziesche, a little messenger boy, for $20. He is in the death-house at San Quentin awaiting execution on April 24.

HOG-TIE GUARD; BLOW THE SAFE.

Old-Fashioned Job Done at Oil Company Plant.

"Blue and Red" Yeggmen Get Away With Loot.

A regulation old-fashioned safe-blowing, where the watchman is bound and gagged and thrown out the back door and the safe is dynamited, occurred at the office of the Puente Oil Company, No. 1198 Alhambra avenue, early yesterday morning. The famous "blue and red" desperadoes accomplished the robbery. They are so named by the police because one always wears a red bandana handkerchief for a mask while the second man wears a blue one. Watchman Frank Sohn was on duty at the oil company's office during the early hours of Sunday morning. He was making his rounds when he was seized by the two men. They wore masks and swore gruffly. "Keep still or I'll kill you," each said to Sohn. Sohn kept still. He had the muzzles of two big revolvers pointing at his stomach at the time. One man held him under service to the gun while the other drew from his pockets some stout cord which was used to bind Sohn to the wall. Around and around he was wrapped, until locomotion and even comfort were impossible. Then one of the men, the one with the blue bandana, drew another blue bandana from his hip and stuffed it into Sohn's mouth. The other bandit, the red one, drew a red bandana from his pocket, and used it to wrap around Sohn's head so the gag would not drop out of his mouth. Then they dragged Sohn to the rear of the building, and threw him into an automobile in the garage. They proceeded then about the work of the evening. It included breaking the bank doors, filling the crevice with nitro-glycerine and blowing the doors off. The job was a success. Money to the approximate amount of $150 was taken. An exact count on the loss could not be made yesterday. Sohn managed to wriggle loose from his bonds and went to the police station, where he notified the police of his predicament and experience. It was a week ago Saturday night that the bank in the office of the Henry Worthington Company was burglarized at No. 225 East Second street.

Music and Science Are Happily United.

Mrs. Paloma Schramm Baruch, One of the leading women pianists of America, who was married by a justice of the peace yesterday to the son of the late Jacob Baruch.

NOTED PIANIST WEDS YOUNG ENGINEER HERE.

Mrs. PALOMA SCHRAMM, one of the representative women pianists of the United States, was quietly married yesterday morning to Edgar Baruch, son of the late Jacob Baruch of the Haas-Baruch Company, at the latter's residence, No. 2058 Harvard boulevard. Only relatives and closest friends were present at the ceremony, which was performed in the garden of the Baruch home, Justice Reeves officiating. Later a reception was held, also at the Baruch residence, at which a coterie of friends of the young people offered congratulations. Mr. and Mrs. Baruch left yesterday afternoon for the north, from where they will shortly sail for a honeymoon in Japan. Mrs. Baruch is widely known in musical circles throughout the world.

COUNCIL PROPOSES TO FORCE BOND ELECTION.

Report Is that Plan to Arrange Matters With Power Companies Has Been Abandoned and an Unsegregated Bond Issue Will Be Submitted to the People. Action Expected Today.

IT LOOKS like another fight over unsegregated bond issues. Members of the City Council state that the negotiations with the electric power companies have been broken off and that an attempt will be made this week, perhaps today, to ram through the Council a resolution submitting to the people a proposed bond issue of $6,500,000 for the completion of the city's power plant and the construction of a distributing system paralleling the present lines of the electric companies. Projects now before the taxpayers of Los Angeles city and county, call for an outlay of $36,000,000, as follows:

City storm drains, City Engineer	$ 9,000,000
Storm protection, Los Angeles River, and so forth.
County issue	5,000,000
Schools, Board of Education estimate	5,000,000
Power plant completion, No. 1	1,250,000
Duplicate power distributing system, to cover only part of the city	5,250,000
Harbor completion, to fulfill pre-consolidation pledges as announced by president of Harbor Commission	4,500,000
San Fernando and Chatsworth water trunk lines, essential to annexation and sale of city's water	1,000,000
Outfall sewer and permanent sewer fund, a pre-requisite of annexation to city of any more territory	2,000,000
Arroyo Seco Park	1,000,000
Purchase of local water companies	1,000,000
City Hall, first unit, Temple Block	500,000
Storm repairs to bridges, etc.	500,000
Total	$36,000,000

To carry out this formidable programme of expenditure would require additional bonds, entailing an additional burden of $2,520,000 a year on the already overburdened taxpayer, as follows:

Interest at 4 1/2 per cent. on $36,000,000	$1,620,000
Sinking fund, 2 1/4 per cent. on $36,000,000	900,000
Total additional yearly burden	$2,520,000

—or $7000 more for each day of the year, Sundays and holidays included. In view of the fact that in April last, when the voters, as a whole, of the city were asked to saddle the taxpayers with a further burden of $17,600,000 bonds, they only responded with authorization for $4,000,000, all they considered as being actually necessary of issue—is it not reasonable to assume that similar discrimination as to what work is actually needed, and what is not, will again be exercised as soon as the voters have the opportunity?

LIFE CRUSHED OUT.

Express Driver Ground Under the Wheels of Switch Engine—Money Twisted Into Nugget.

Car wheels that crushed out the life of William Price, a Wells Fargo Express Company driver, early Sunday morning, also demolished several gold coins that he carried in a secret pouch about his neck. Every coin in the purse was twisted into a nugget. Price came to his death at Second and Alameda street, where a switching train ran over his body. Switchman Magill, who sat on a car, saw Price's body as it passed under the wheels. He reported that Price must have gone to sleep on the tracks, and had been undisturbed for several hours, as no switching had been done on the tracks during the night. The body was taken to Breece Bros. mortuary. He lived at No. 503 Ruth avenue.

SCHOOLBOY SHOT.
George Cooke, No. 2635 Lacy street, was arrested yesterday for having shot Frank Maghacchio, an Italian schoolboy. Cooke alleges that the boy was stealing junk from his yard. The boy was taken to the Receiving Hospital, where several buckshot were taken from his body.

Mr. Gordan Says:

—Since '86 I've been closely in touch with the wool and woolen market, and I know that the recent wool "tariff" will not perceptibly lower the cost of your clothes!—
—What will it do? Positively better their quality, not radically, yet very noticeably.
—My pre-advanced Imported Spring woollens just out of the Custom House offer striking evidence of this improvement.
—And I'm equally proud of some "extra" fine Domestic goods, just newly unpacked.
—Suits from Domestic goods are priced $40 and $45. Those from abroad range from $50 to $80.
—If you are extra exacting, why not have your next suit "Gordan-made"?

Life or Death AWAITS CALL.

DULL MORNING TURNED INTO ONE OF EXCITEMENT.

Messenger Boys, Taxicabs, Ambulances, Mortuary Wagons, Detectives Fairly Besiege Hotel Seeking to Relieve Agony of Mythical Woman—"Jokers" Are Sought.

It had been a dull morning at the hotel near the corner of Third and Figueroa streets, yesterday. Nothing of interest had taken place; the guests had been sated with excitement by the motor races. Time lagged, and things looked unpromising. Many persons remarked about it. Shortly after noon, a messenger boy called to see Mrs. Beverly Griffiths. The clerk regretted, but no such party lived at the house. The messenger boy left, perplexed. He collided in the door with another messenger, who was out of breath, and perspiring. "Get out of the way," he yelled, "I got to reach that lady in three seconds or she's dead!" It developed that summons had come to the messenger service that life and death awaited the result of the messenger. Grim joke in itself. Came more messenger boys. Then a taxicab arrived. All for Mrs. Beverly Griffiths. The taxicab drew up before the hotel in pairs at first, then trios, and finally in shoals. It seemed as though every taxicab agency in the city rushed from one to three cabs to the hotel, all for Mrs. Beverly Griffiths, who had ordered a taxicab by telephone. The taxicab drivers, outwitted and outplayed for once, were holding a hot caucus in front of the hotel. The attendants said that hysterical calls had reported a sick person at the hotel, one Mrs. Beverly Griffiths. The ambulance fleet was increased by a drove of black wagons with long bodies and funeral appointments, the vehicles for reasons which I do not care to give. I regard this as my own personal affair and not the business of the Humane Society. Two weeks ago Virginia ran away from a home in Venice, where she had been placed by her mother, and returned to the La Cresta Sanatorium at No. 3211 Temple street, this city, where she was a patient one year ago. The child told Mrs. T. Thomas, matron of the sanatorium, that she left the Venice home because it was her duty to care for a baby that weighed thirty pounds, and was too heavy for her to handle. Mrs. Thomas notified Mrs. Shelton that her daughter was at the sanatorium, and she was taken to the mother's home. Mrs. Shelton said that she was unable to manage her MOTHER OF HAIR-EATER, SISTER AND AUNT, TOO.

THE DEPARTURE of Virginia Field, 12 years old, yesterday for New Orleans, where she will make her home with an uncle, will probably terminate the investigation of one of the oddest cases ever un- derstood by the Los Angeles Humane Society for Children. Persons who looked into the child's affairs were puzzled to learn that her mother, Mrs. Anna Shelton of No. 1120 South Grand avenue, posed also at different places as the aunt and the sister of the girl. The complex life of the child was further disturbed by her peculiar habit of biting off the ends of her braids of hair. Dr. Howard Seager performed an operation on the child at the Columbia Hospital, in which he removed a ball of hair weighing several ounces from her stomach. Dr. Seager believes that the strange habit is due to acute nervousness. Mrs. Shelton admitted yesterday that she had been known as the mother, aunt and sister of the child. She stated that the first was the true relationship. "I represented myself at different places as the mother, aunt and sister of Virginia because I wanted to," Mrs. Shelton said yesterday. "I did so for reasons which I do not care to give. I regard this as my own personal affair and not the business of the Humane Society."

STATES OF MIND.

In the City Jail are a woman and a man. They are husband and wife and one of them, in a bitter family quarrel, killed the woman's father. Of course the responsibility is fourfold because there were four persons present and each of them was in a mad mental whirl. All of our blazings, angry, pitiful weaknesses and hot shames are the bitter fruits of sick mentalities. What happens to hurt the heart and break the life, to wound friends and destroy position, is only the surface indication of the inside storm. It is only when men are hurt that they will stop and look.

EMIGRANTS AND IMMIGRANTS.

The cry of "On to Canada" has ceased to reverberate among the farmers of the Northwest. In 1912 115,524 persons from the United States passed over the border to become settlers in the Dominion. In 1913 there were but 93,936, a decrease of 20 per cent. But there was an increase in European arrivals in Canada. The emigrants from Great Britain and the Scandinavian countries to the Dominion were not so well provided with means as those from the United States, and it has troubled the Dominion authorities to find homes and work for them. But they are a far more desirable acquisition to the citizenship of the Dominion than are the 1,125,000 aliens who, during 1913, came to the United States, a majority of whom were from Southern Italy.

THE "COLONEL" PRAISES IT.

"Col." Harris Weinstein (by the way, what was he ever colonel of?—the Horse Marines?) praises the workman's compensation law on the ground that Bismarck was its originator, that Kaiser Wilhelm endorses it, that Emperor Franz Joseph favors it, that George the Fifth indorses it, that the kings of Italy, Spain and Portugal shout for it, and only the decrepit old Sultan of Turkey shakes his head.

"Col." Weinstein reasons that what is good enough for the monarchs of the effete despotisms of Europe ought to be good enough for the subjects of Hiram the First (and the last, praise be). The conclusion of the "colonel" is unanswerable. If you accept his premises that conditions in Europe and in America are identical. But a good many Americans will not accept his premises.

HOGS AND HAPPINESS.

A man who died in New York spent his life raising hogs and left nearly a million dollars. He had a good heart and many friends, yet he never learned to read or write. It is sad when a man of large ability in one direction will be satisfied to remain low-lit. Wealth-seeking as a game is interesting, but the possession of wealth means little without a capacity for enjoyment. Culture is next to integrity when it comes to happiness. Except for culture there is no other insurance against old age. A cultivated person, ripe in years and poor in purse, is so rich in mind that he may occupy a cot in the County Hospital and fresco his walls with images of the poorhouse fat and call about him the legends of history and the heroes of art. Let no man think himself poor while a good intuition remains in his heart or the solace of knowledge is left for his comfort.

AT OUR DOORS.

Now that the harbor bonds are placed it is to be hoped and expected that work at the harbor will be pushed with all diligence, that Los Angeles will be ready for the mighty traffic that will crowd upon her when the Panama Canal shall be open.

In connection with the Suez Canal there will be a direct water highway around the world and the ship owners of the world are making ready to belt the earth in the northern hemisphere, to run circles around it east and west just south of the United States.

The biggest steamship company in the world—the Hamburg-American line—proposes to establish an around-the-world service via Panama and Suez. The Amerika, the Victoria Louise, and possibly the great Imperator will be placed in this service and Los Angeles is likely to be a port of call between Panama and Yokohama.

An eastern exchange says that the Fabre line, which has just opened to Providence, R. I. is reported as contemplating an around-the-world service through the Panama Canal, calling at Pacific Coast ports.

The Blue Funnel line will institute a direct line from Europe through the Panama Canal, up the Pacific Coast, and around the world through Suez. Sixty-one ships are now being operated by this line and five huge craft are being built for circling the globe. These ships will run both east and west.

Fifteen international steamship lines are already planning for the Panama Canal route, and of these eleven companies are building in the aggregate sixty big steamers of from 10,000 tons each upward for the Panama Canal route.

There will be lines between Rio Janeiro and Buenos Aires and other Atlantic South American ports and San Pedro, and vessels plying between Puget Sound or San Francisco and Pacific South American ports will call here for passengers and freight.

A mighty commerce is at our very doors. The imperative duty of the hour is to make ready for it.

THE SLUMP OF HARPER'S WEEKLY.

"Making mock of uniforms that guard you while you sleep is cheaper than their uniforms—and they're starvation cheap."

For some years past the signal of distress on the high seas of journalism has been a series of articles which asks in a scared whisper, "What's the matter with the army?"

Like most calls of distress this magazine S.O.S. signal is thoroughly standardized. It consists of a series of pictures of very skimpy companies of United States soldiers.

"Lieutenants takin' companies and captains takin' wings. An' lancea actin' sergeants—eight file to obey."

Spilled across the pages, filling in the chinks where the pictures are not, are learned remarks by writing young gentlemen. They do not enlighten the reader very much as to "What is the matter with the army?" but they give the initiated a fairly comprehensive idea as to the lack of prosperity of the magazine hoisting the signal.

At the appearance of this oft-repeated query other magazine editors respectfully remove their hats and say in awed voices to their crews, "Don't cheer, boys; those fellows are dying."

The latest publication to display this agonizing pennant at the masthead is Harper's Weekly. Norman Hapgood, the top-hatted young person who formerly edited Collier's Weekly, backed by the business judgment of the Colliers—father and son—Mr. Hapgood ran amuck without any particular damage except to the nervous systems of those who were trying to pay his salary out of the results of his frenzy.

Far be it from us to pry into the secrets of the Collier family affair, but presently the side door opened and Mr. Hapgood emerged therefrom with the haughty air of one who has just endured the pains and agonies of being "fired."

"Just for this," said Mr. Hapgood, in an awful voice, "I shall start a magazine of my own, untrammelled, etc., etc."

And, in the words of Luke McGlue, "he went and done so."

In reality he did worse. He led astray the respectable old Harper's Weekly. A Socialist to the core, Mr. Hapgood smeared the whole editorial policy of the old publication with flaming red paint.

Calling to his aid a corps of rampant Socialist cartoonists and heaven only knows how many "red" literary artists, he proceeded to expose all the wrongs of this sad, hard-working nation of business people. Each week he excitedly explained to us that those of us who have acquired money are villains; those of us who haven't are down-trodden, persecuted wretches, etc., etc.

And his cartoonists drew pictures of our woe. All of which fascinated and charmed Mr. Hapgood who, being a young man of some inherited wealth himself, could well appreciate the humor of his own raving. But the difficulty was, the public did not appear to share his naive delight. Especially the business men. In all probability the big commercial enterprises whose advertisements support all magazines did not especially object to Mr. Hapgood's agitated remarks nor the pictures of his Socialist cartoonists. But they did feel a delicacy about furnishing the money to publish attacks upon themselves.

Wherefore Harper's Weekly—blinded by the beacon light of Mr. Hapgood's intellect—appears to languish, not to say wilt and starve.

And so it has begun to ask publicly, "What is the matter with the army?"—and to attempt to answer its own question.

And of all the answers to the much-repeated question, the reply of Mr. Hapgood's magazine seems to be the funniest, or the most amazing—whichever way you look upon it.

In a double-page cartoon—oddly enough not by one of the reds—Mr. Hapgood shows a wicked United States army officer, his face covered by a dreadful leer, forcing a poor, humble soldier to pull off his boots. On the opposite page is a cartoon showing a French soldier lighting a cigarette from the cigar of an officer.

The inference is that our soldiers desert in large numbers from our army because they have to pull off the boots of the officers; they do not desert from the French army because officers light cigarettes for them.

In the "piece" which accompanies the cartoons one of Mr. Hapgood's writers shows how men are deserting the army. As the cause for the alarming outflow he gives a long list of punishments meted out to commissioned officers and to the enlisted men. He seems to take it especially hard because the punishment for disrespect to an officer is as severe as sleeping on sentry duty.

"To be snippy to an officer," cries this outraged writer, "is quite as heinous as sleeping on post or deserting one's guard."

Now the fact is, men really are deserting the army, and the military spirit is at a dangerously low ebb. This is not due, however, to the fact that the Republican form of government is not the basis of military life; or that our officers do not act as human cigarette lighters for the enlisted men.

Mr. Hapgood, were he to conduct a real investigation, would be somewhat pained to learn that he and his Progressive friends and the doctrines they have forced upon the army are the main cause of the malady that now cripples our army.

Of course, even Mr. Hapgood can scarcely be serious in contrasting the French army with our own.

The French army is recruited by conscription. Every able-bodied young Frenchman has to serve for two years with the colors and several years thereafter with the reserves. It is no use for the Frenchman to desert for there is no escape. A horribly undemocratic state of affairs, Mr. Hapgood!

The epidemic of desertions began when the United States army was made over after the Spanish War.

Our army, before that, consisted of a few regiments of seasoned men trained in the hard school of Indian fighting. They were never assembled in regiments. There were officers who had never seen a regiment of soldiers drilling together. There were colonels who had never seen their commands assembled. The soldiers were scattered in small garrisons of one or two companies each in lonely garrisons along what was then the frontier.

The relations between the officers and the men were those of a stern father and his children. And Mr. Hapgood might have been horrified to discover that the sterner officers were usually the most popular. The idols of the enlisted men were officers like Lieut.-Gen. Chaffee, who were short and gruff, but looked after the welfare of their men as a good father takes care of his family.

After the Spanish War these conditions changed. The lonely garrisons were swept away. The soldiers were moved into big posts and forts near the cities. An effort was made to remodel the army along European lines.

The gruff old damn-you, ram-you type of army officer gave place to the young military scientist who spends two-thirds of his time at a military college and one-third of his time with his men.

On top of this came the Roosevelt regime. Out of his vast experience of leading a charge up San Juan Hill Col. Roosevelt decided to change the army.

He introduced the elaborate system of practice marches which very nearly killed the institution. Perhaps there was a reason for these marches, but the men hated them. It was march and study; study and march.

The old spirit was gone. In the old days army life appealed to the spirit of adventure that is in every healthy young man. Now the life of an army man holds out small hope of adventure.

War has become an intricate science. Cannon are sighted by mathematics. Cavalrymen spend as much time studying the skeleton of a horse as they do riding the horse. The old thrill is gone.

The officer, depicted by Mr. Hapgood's artist as sneering while the down-trodden private removes his boots, in reality makes a pathetic attempt to entertain that same private. No wife whose charms are beginning to fade ever made a more sincere attempt to "make things pleasant" than this same leering young commissioned officer.

For the entertainment of the enlisted men they have moving pictures, field meets, private theatricals.

And listen to this, Mr. Hapgood: One of the shocked criticisms offered by foreign army officers against our snobbish young West Pointers is that they are too friendly and familiar with the men! On their practice marches the company commander and the right guide of the command have been known to chatter like two washwomen.

And this will be sweet music to the ears of Mr. Hapgood—the satrap in shoulder straps has been known to light cigarettes from the "pill" in the lips of the private soldier.

Soldiers who have served in foreign armies are always amazed and sometimes a little disgusted at the spirit of familiarity between the officers and men in the United States army. As to the punishments served out for lack of respect shown to the authority of the officers, Mr. Hapgood can hardly expect any one to take seriously this criticism.

Discipline exists for the safety of the army itself. In the time of military crisis it is not practical to hold a town meeting and take a vote of the soldiers. Obedience must be a habit. The soldier who, by disrespect to any officer weakens the authority of that officer is a more dangerous foe to a military company than the enemy who shoots bullets at it.

Of course, through this whole question one fact must stand out so glaringly that it is almost superfluous to mention it: The most dangerous foes of the army are these journalists who continue to print pictures of its depleted ranks.

"What is the matter with the army?" is Mr. Hapgood and his confederates. But the indications are that Harper's Weekly and Mr. Hapgood will soon cease to trouble.

THE LONDON BUILDING STRIKE.

The principal difficulty in the way of a permanent amicable adjustment of the relations between capital and labor is that no force yet discovered has been able to compel or persuade the members of trade unions, either individually or collectively, to abide by any contracts or keep any promises they make.

A prominent trade unionist, writing from London to an eastern journal, says: "There seems to be no end to the labor war in England. Before one is finished another is entered upon. Since 1911 transport workers, miners, railwaymen, London, Leith and Dublin dockers, and High Wycombe chair-makers have been engaged in bitter disputes, and London was recently threatened with a coal famine, owing to the coal porters' dispute."

There is now pending in the English metropolis a trial of strength between the mechanics engaged in the building industry and the contractors. In 1912 a period of depression in building was succeeded by one of activity, and the unions took advantage of the situation to demand an increase of pay and a reduction of working hours.

These demands were acceded to by the employers and embodied in agreements in writing between the unions and the employers.

These agreements contained a mutual pledge that "no exception shall be taken to the employment or non-employment of a man on the ground that he is or is not a member of such society or societies (trade union organization)."

It was further agreed that for the adjustment of all disputes upon a difference arising between an employer and any of his workmen "notice shall be given by the association of the complaining party to the association representing the other side, and the subject matter of dispute shall thereupon be referred to the board of conciliation."

In despite of these pledges, when some employers hired a few non-union men, the unions, instead of referring the matter to the board of conciliation as agreed, ordered strikes and tied up twenty big jobs.

The builders called a conference on December 23, 1913. They demanded of the unions "that the contracts with them should be kept, that the strikers should be penalized and ordered back to work, and that no similar attempts to coerce non-unionists should be made in the future."

The unionists refused to comply with this demand, and the employers decided to summarily terminate the agreements entered into with the unions.

The employers attempted then to enforce their demands upon the workmen individually by requiring them to sign individually the agreement which the unions had signed and violated. Acting upon the advice of the union officials the men refused to sign these documents, with the result that 40,000 workmen were discharged, a lock-out prevailed, and all the big building jobs in London are at a standstill.

The employers have thus far made no attempt to replace the men who have been locked out by importing men from other districts. The non-union men in London are terrorized by the unions and do not seek work, and building has ceased in London.

The union leaders have called a conference of all the unions and announced their programme to be (1) abolition of the conciliation clause, (2) abolition of the disability clause, (3) four-day-four-hour week all the year round, (4) an all-around increase of wages.

The employers are determined to resist interference with their non-unionist workmen during their employment.

The sound of saw, hammer and trowel is no longer heard in large sections of London. Blocks of unfinished buildings evidence a cessation of labor. The workers are losing from two million to three million dollars a month, and idleness has superseded industry—all be- lievers in the union movement are determined to prevent a lesser number of non-union men from earning their bread.

If the fool-killer ever enters London there will be great mortality among the strikers.

Business Reason.
 [Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph:] An old colored man, charged with stealing chickens, was arraigned in court and was incriminating himself when the judge said: "You ought to have a lawyer. Where's your lawyer?"

"Ah ain't got no lawyer, Judge," said the old man.

"Very well, then," said His Honor, "I'll assign a lawyer to defend you."

"Oh, no, sub; no sub! Please don't do dat!" the darky begged.

"Why not?" asked the judge. "It won't cost you anything. Why don't you want a lawyer?"

"Well, Judge, Ah'll tell you, sub," said the old man, waving his tattered old hat confidentially. "His jest dis way—Ah wan'tuh enjoy dem chickens mahself!"

BUILDING OF THE AQUEDUCT.

[Respectfully dedicated to "The Builders": the people of Los Angeles, William Mulholland, and his 4000 assistants.]

Of all fair lands no fairer could there be Than this God favored by the western sea; And so a city grew in wondrous ways. For they who came to see stayed on to praise.

And tireless toil enriched each golden hour Where pride didst fill to brim the cup of power.

But came, anon, the menace of a foe To utmost excellence: impending was Hung heavily; a sudden, crying need Didst trouble, sore oppress, yet none could read.

Aright the conquering way—none, save one man. Who dared a mammoth thought, and thinking planned.

With Faith so great it caught at Unbelief And shattered it as shell upon the reef, Till coffers poured forth gold, and on a day Triumphant rode a goodly host away.

And ever with them was the vision bright By day, and ever self-same dream by night.

Far in the mystical mountains of Inyo, Where mighty waters abound, High in the heart of the solemn Sierras, Ceaseless the thundering sound

Of cataracts leaping the cliffs and the chasms, Hurrying, journeying down; Rushing of rare, multitudinous rivers Onward to country and town.

Waters sufficient to set swift wheels turning For many a mile away; To lure all the gold from this great California And light dark'ning valleys as day;

Fertile and fruitful land, But lost, all lost, in their wild, free courses, Spent on secretive sand.

This, the great storehouse that Nature didst fashion Long since, when the world began— Cloud-curtained Land of Much Water—first witnessed

Colossal labor of man, Startling: the birds in their soft nesting places, Beast in the lonesome lair;

What meant this stir of unaccustomed hums Thrilling the fragrant air?

Incessant boring of gray, granite barriers, Clashing of steel on stones, Prone through the heart of the ancient ranges.

Portal to portal thrown; Rattle and clug of dredger and shovel, Restless and giant-strong; Fabrication of syphon and conduit Reverberations prolong.

Stretched the long way o'er the thirsty Mojave, Voids parched marrow bone; Crept the slow years in the realm of Death Valley.

Years of toil, lean and lone, Naught but mirage this the sight of clear water

Asking on the sinister sands? Naught but a dream this the sound of swift water

Flowing o'er arid lands? Ah, no, not always mirage, this gleam 'Neath scorching sun, of pure, pellucid stream.

Its passage but an empty dream, as born Of nights 'neath desert stars, dispelled at morn.

With steadfast purpose pressed the tollers on, Day unto night, night to ultimate dawn.

'Tis done at last—Herculean task, of fame Such as a nation might full proudly claim; What praise, what honor then shall not redound

To this fair city, whence the surging sound Of glad rejoicing rises and away, Is wafted over seas to far Cathay?

And unto many lands, till up and down The reaches of this world spreads its renown.

Ye eager dwellers by the sea extol This wondrous work, of human skill the goal!

Of metal, mortar, and man's labor wrought, Of seven patient years and one's great thought.

Well done, ye tollers, nameless though ye be Our laudatory thoughts go forth to thee; And though as sands in swirl of storm ye shift

Yet thine the crown of labor that doth lift The wilderness to bloom, and doth insure Prosperity and plenty to endure!

BESSIE PRYOR FLETCHER.

DELAY.
 "Delays," said Dad, "are dangerous, and apt to work much harm." 'Twas in the days when, grangerous, we lived upon the farm. So we were always hurrying to get things done oftsoons, the plowing and the currying the harvesting of prunes. We did our work, non-whoooping, and gained a silver buck, while other farmers droopingly complained of evil luck. When storms came a-thundering we did not care a darn; they never caught us blundering—our hay was in the barn; when rivers rose anathematically, overflowing banks and bed, we viewed the blamed things brazenly—our wood was in the shed. The elements might clammily spread snow throughout the land, they could not catch our family without some coal on hand. The lessons learned thus youthfully have served me all my days, and I can tell you truthfully that "Up and Dey it" pays. Delays are surely ruinous: let's do things on the jump, or Fate will soon be shooin' us toward the blawsted dump.

The Origin of a Fad.
 [Judge:] Marcella, who had been gazing out of the window, suddenly began to laugh hysterically.

"What in the world is the matter, child?" asked her mother.

"When I finished my carpet rug," Marcella explained, "I folded it across my lap and carried it that way down the street to show it to Rosemary."

"Well, what of it?"

"That was only three days ago," gasped Marcella, with a renewed outburst of merriment, "and now nearly every girl in the block is wearing a carpet-rug muff."

Would be Happier.
 [London Life:] Miss Candor: What a splendid world it would be if we could only see ourselves as others see us!

Miss Hardhead: I know something better than that.

Miss Candor: What?

Miss Hardhead: To see others as we see ourselves.

ED SWEENEY SAID TO HAVE JUMPED TO THE FEDERALS.

CHICAGO, March 1.—The Federal League's playing season, which is to be opened on April 15, before the National and American leagues begin their campaigns, will include 154 games. The end of the season, President Gilmore said today, will come early in October, or about the time of the National and American league wind-up.

"We will be ready to play for the world's championship the second week in October," said one of the club owners, who remained over Sunday after attending the meeting that yesterday apportioned 200 players to be in the old field of organized baseball within a year at the outside.

Manager Phillips of Indianapolis was pleased with the lot which brought him Jimmy Esmond, the former Cincinnati and Montreal second baseman. Esmond was wanted to fill out the Indianapolis infield.

News that Phillips had drawn him was about the only definite information that came from the managers' conference.

Every club in the league will be represented at New York when the world tourists land this week. President Gilmore will head the reception committee and he is confident of obtaining some of the stars.

A report that Eddie Sweeney, catcher for the New York Americans, had signed with the Federal League, was denied today, when Sweeney was seen with Manager Schaefer of the Buffalo Bulls. Sweeney was supposed to be in the New York club's training camp at Houston, Tex., not later than tomorrow.

The Buffalo club has made him an offer, it was said.

TETZLAFF FAILS TO BEAT HIS FIVE MILE RECORD.

THE Los Angeles Driving Club races at Exposition Park yesterday afternoon were a great success both financially and in interest displayed. The driving races were fast and a majority of the heats close and exciting.

Roy Knabenshue gave an exhibition fight in his dreadnought dirigible, making a beautiful flight over the field after landing and starting again.

Teddy Tetzlaff drove several races against time in his "Orion," but he failed to better any records, making five miles in 4m. 15a. and doing good time in the other trials.

Roy Shaw and Glen Stokes competed in a match motorcycle race, with the former showing the class.

In a match driving race for the best two out of three mile heats, Joe McGregor beat Lady Silverthorn in straight heats, making the best time of the day in the first heat, 2m. 12a.

NAPS LEAVE FOR TRAINING GROUND.

NEW ORLEANS, March 1.—Five members of the Cleveland Americans left tonight for Athens, Ga., the club's training camp.

Arrangements were made today for exhibition games here March 5, 14 and 15 between the New Orleans club and the Detroit Americans, who are training at Gulfport, Miss.

The New Orleans club outplayed a patched up team of Clevelanders and Toledo players today, 5 to 4.

MISS LIBBEY'S REPLY TO YOUR LETTERS.

A Lover Not to Be Depended On.

Dear Miss Libbey: A young man has been calling on me on two different occasions, and each time he would quit calling without giving a reason.

How can I let him know that I would like him to call again?

M. M.

The young man seems to be either a fool or not sufficiently interested in you to care to continue visiting you.

He knows the way, and would need no urging if he desired to spend an evening at your home. Do not write to him or send an invitation through friends—and perhaps meet the mortification of refusal. He is evidently not the right one.

A Wise, Thoughtful Maiden.

Dear Miss Libbey: I am an orphan, 21 years of age. I earn my own living—making $4.50 per week, and after paying my board and clothes, I am penniless. Am keeping company with a gentleman for a year, a bachelor over 45, looks younger, has a good position. He gives me expensive presents, says he loves me. I care for him, feel sure if I encourage him he will ask me to marry him. I have no one to advise or help me in the struggle of life, and realize a girl's chances in my position are very slim in getting a good husband and home.

Will you ease my troubled life to advise?

If you love him, marry him. Good husbands are at a premium. Hard work and privations told on a girl. It is best to have a strong shoulder to lean upon and a loving husband to make you happy. A man is as young as his heart is.

No Cook—No Wedding.

Dear Miss Libbey: A young man has just proposed to me under a strange condition. He wants to be married in six weeks, providing I can make the

ORIENT READY FOR RELIGION.

Y.M.C.A. Secretary Sees the Dawn of a New Era.

Greater Liberty Is Granted the Individual.

Standards of Occident Will Now Be Accepted.

"They have a governmental church in England and no one thinks anything of the fact. The acknowledgment of Confucianism as the state religion of China is merely a political move, and there has never been greater religious liberty in the history of that vast nation," declared George Sherwood Eddy, general secretary of the Y.M.C.A. on the continent of Asia, who addressed several thousand persons in Los Angeles yesterday, speaking in the morning at the Temple Baptist Church, in the afternoon at the big Y.M.C.A. men's meetings in the First Methodist Episcopal Church, and in the evening to a crowded auditorium at the First Congregational Church.

Seventeen years in the Orient, traveling from one end to the other, meeting princes and paupers, educated and ignorant, has given Eddy one of the most keen insights on oriental matters of any living Christian. He declares that all of the nations are just passing the morning of a great awakening, not only in the lines of religion, but in the matter of education, advancement, and development in all lines acknowledged by Caucasian civilization.

"Japan has advanced in constitutional government; Korea is being reconstituted; China has become a progressive constitutional republic; Turkey is throwing open the doors of its century-old secrets; India is having a commercial and religious awakening and even in darkest Russia, greater liberty is being granted the individual and the organization," he said.

"In India, the increase of Christians is amazing, and converts are being gained at the rate of 50 per cent. a decade, which is much more rapid than the gain of Buddhistic, Mohammedanistic or Hindu religions. The rate of increase is gaining all the time and it will be less than a century before Christianity is acknowledged throughout the Orient, as it is in the Occident today."

RELIGIOUS FREEDOM.
"In Peking, all of the fourteen governmental colleges have been thrown open to the work of the Y.M.C.A. while two years ago the High Altar of Heaven, where the Emperor went to worship once each year, was thrown open to the general public, and this year, the Y.M.C.A. leaders held their prayer meeting in this temple, a thing which a few years ago would have been a fatal desecration, and resulted undoubtedly in the massacre of those who would have attempted such a sacrilege, as it would have been looked upon by the Chinese."

"Poochow was a revelation on my last visit. Five thousand Chinese crowded the auditorium every day for a week, and the hall, holding only 2000, it was necessary to have two meetings each evening, and also overflow meetings. The Parliament adjourned, and the Board of Trade attended in a body. The colleges were closed in the afternoon in order to permit the students to be present."

"Awar in Chengtu, capital of Szechuan, near the border of the Tibet, the Governor presented the Y.M.C.A. property for the erection of a great building, property which five years ago a Christian institution could not have purchased for a million. In addition, he donated a large sum for the establishment of a Christian magazine for the education of his people."

"Thus, from end to end of China, the business and professional men are endorsing our work by giving us land, assisting in the erection of buildings, and all that we must needs do to meet them half-way."

Secretary Eddy declared that it is not only religion that is undergoing this remarkable change. There has been a rapid development of nationality, patriotism, constitutional government and military power. The former absolutism in government prevented these things for many centuries, and now there is danger that nationalism shall become too strong, as evidenced in Japan, where soldiers and officers wrote petitions in their own blood, asking to go to the front in the war with Russia.

The educational renaissance is even more marked than the political and a great emancipation from ancient thought and teaching is taking place. A single ship carried 500 American and European teachers to China. The printing press is coming into general use, and newspapers are established in all parts of the Occident, serving to spread education and enlightenment. Secretary Eddy declared that this is the day of the Orient and that it is only a matter of a few years before the standards of the Occident will be accepted as the standards of the Orient.

While in Southern California, the distinguished visitor will be the principal speaker of the State Y.M.C.A. convention at Long Beach from March 13 to 15, at which time the Rev. Booker T. Washington will also be heard. Secretary Eddy will also speak at Stanford and Berkeley before returning to China.

YOUTHFUL INVENTOR.

Son of Fire Chief Experimenting With Various Devices to Lessen Life's Arduous Pursuits.

Fire Chief Archie J. Eley has a son who is an inventor. The Eley household at No. 1224 West Fifty-second street is full of devices for "easing the fly," for lessening the arduous pursuits of wringing clothes, and sweeping floors, and there is a laboratory where fearful and wonderful experiments in electricity go on, under the facile fingers of Francis Eley.

The young man is a student at McKinley-avenue school, and among other inventions of the youthful scientist, is a weather house for the science department, which is located on the roof of the building. An incubator for the growth of molds, bacteria, etc., with electric heating apparatus, is also among the young man's creations. Simply throwing a switch one way lights the lamp in the incubator to full candle power, and full heat, and by throwing the switch in the opposite direction, both the lamp inside and outside the incubator are put in series with each other, giving a lower temperature to the incubator.

Eley is at present at work upon an electrical hygrometer, for science departments of schools and colleges.

PICTURES TO SHOW ACTION.

UTILIZATION OF THE "MOVIES" TO TEACH ADVERTISING.

Salesmanship Course at Polytechnic High School Will Adopt Present Day Methods to Illustrate the Ideas of the Lecturer—Big Firms Are Interested.

Moving pictures as first aid to salesmanship is the method by which the advertising and salesmanship classes of Polytechnic High and evening schools, as well as representatives from the big department stores of the city, are to be taught the art of advertising.

Mr. George Wessel of Polytechnic High, formerly of the University of California, has charge of the enterprise. The first lecture will be given Wednesday evening at Polytechnic High auditorium, when G. F. Pfaffenberger, assistant manager of the Owl Drug Company, will show the students, by means of moving pictures, the right and the wrong way of going about to advertise and sell things. Concrete examples, illustrative of every phase of selling, such as the personality of the salesman, dress, manners, knowledge of the goods, various means of display, the importance of service and customer's comfort, and particularly suggestion, will be shown. In each case the wrong way will be contrasted with the right way.

The large department stores will send their employees to get the benefit of the lectures. Three dinners are being arranged by the big firms to take place this spring, and at each of these a business man of standing will give a talk to students. Mr. Rosenberg, chairman of the Programme Committee of the Business Men's Club, will speak on one occasion, and O. J. Renfrew, advertising agent, and member of the Executive Committee of the Advertising Club of America, will address the club at another session. Moving picture lessons will be given throughout the course.

The educational renaissance is even more marked than the political and a great emancipation from ancient thought and teaching is taking place. WAVES ITS LAST GREEN GREETING

Great Arcade Station Palm to Be Removed.

For Third Time in Its Fifty Years of Life.

Site Clearing for New Depot Begins Tomorrow.

How many millions have seen the towering palm that has majestically swayed its way upward toward the skies, finally over-reaching the old Arcade station of the Southern Pacific? Could the palm but answer, it would give more valuable data than was ever collected by a Chamber of Commerce or the officials of the railroad.

And the old palm, so typical of the growth of the city of which it has been so true a landmark, is again to be moved. It is almost thirty-five years since its last move, and so firmly has it become rooted to its present place of abode that it may be fatal to tear it from old haunts and place it among strangers. Sentimental railroad officials are not sufficiently numerous, however, to have provided for this veteran palm a niche in the new depot, which necessitates its present change of address. Roadmaster Clarence E. Stephens has been authorized to make all preparations for the transplanting to a site not yet definitely decided on. Half a century ago the palm was brought from the desert and planted on San Pedro street, between what are now Second and Third streets, but which in the late '50's did not exist. In 1873 Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Wilson purchased the property on which this palm and two of its brothers stood. They sold the place in 1880, and the purchaser the following year proceeded to erect a warehouse on the site, and offered the palms to the Southern Pacific to use in front of the then new Arcade station. It took weeks of work, a crew of considerable size, and considerable incidental expense, before the palm, then about thirty feet tall, was transferred from its first Los Angeles residence to the present place.

Instead of being hauled through the streets reclining, the palm was moved standing, its head majestically erect, but on this move it will be necessary to humiliate its grandeur because of electric and other wires. It is now about seventy-five feet tall and great difficulties may be encountered, even though it is carried on its side.

The moving of the palm spells the end of the present depot. Morris Orsatti has purchased the various buildings along Central avenue between Third and Sixth streets, and will begin their demolition tomorrow, indicating that the work on the new station is actually to commence. He has thirty days in which to carry out his portion of the contract. When completed, there will be nothing left of the structures which for years have been such an eyesore to the arriving and departing travelers.

The tenants, who have hung on to the last, were last Friday given three days' notice to get out, and the buildings, even including the old Central Hotel, will be a thing of the past within another two or three weeks. The station itself will stand while the new building is being erected around it.

The Alta planing mill was given the contract last week for the station, which will cost at least $150,000, while another $400,000 will be expended in improving the yards, commissary buildings, and the erection of a subsidiary station for Wells, Fargo & Co. at Sixth and Central.

SCHOOL OF METHODS.

Rally of Sunday-School Workers Shows Interesting Results—Large Morning Attendance.

Members of the School of Methods gathered in a rally at the First Christian Church yesterday afternoon and listened to several of the national officials who came here from the East to assist in the development of this Sunday-school work.

The auditorium of the church was filled almost to overflowing when Robert M. Hopkins, general superintendent of the School of Methods, spoke on the general work of that organization in raising the standard of Sunday-school work. Miss Hazel A. Lewis of Cincinnati discussed the elementary work and Miss Cynthia Pearl Maus of St. Louis spoke of the education afforded by the secondary departments.

Rev. M. D. Clubb showed what has been accomplished along the lines of Sunday-school education in Southern California and Rev. Leonard G. Thompson elucidated on the work in this city. There are 253 members enrolled in the School of Methods and these represent forty-four of the local churches. A large group is going through an examination as to qualifications as Sunday-school teachers and will be graduated this evening if successful.

It was shown that in twenty-four local Sunday-schools the attendance of yesterday morning was 116 and the contributions totaled $132.70 from the children, surpassing the record attendance of the other six principal cities of the United States. The acting Los Angeles leader in this as well as in many other things.

MEDICAL EXAMINER CHANGES TREATMENT BRIGHT'S DISEASE

The Hospital card showed, "Chronic Interstitial Nephritis."
The patient was Howard W. Stanley, 3650 N. 9th St., Philadelphia, connected with one of the great railway systems of the country, with headquarters in the Quaker City.

The patient now writes: "While in the Hospital they gave me Uroquin. After that the Dispensary doctor gave me Digitalis. When I told our Medical Examiner of the R. R. about it, he told me to quit the Digitalis and sent me to a man who was cured by Fulton's Renal Compound, whose symptoms were about the same as mine, from whom I found out where your treatment could be procured."

The ability of Fulton's Renal Compound to reduce albumen in many cases of Bright's Disease is not a matter of opinion but a FACT IN PHYSICS and will mail formula that will show the percentage of albumen from week to week. As the albumen disappears, improvement commonly follows, recoveries having been reported in thousands of cases. Formula and literature mailed on request. John J. Fulton Co., San Francisco.

Pure Beer an aid to sleep

Hops are tonical and soporific. A bottle of pure beer at bedtime will benefit you greatly. But be sure it's pure.

Schlitz is brewed in the dark, cooled in filtered air, every bottle sterilized, aged for months to prevent biliousness. The windows of our bottling plant are of brown glass. Schlitz is made pure and the Brown Bottle keeps it pure until it is poured into your glass.
